

NEWSLETTER, APRIL 2021

Well, here we are! A new season....and a new reason to be playing golf ... well, it is a new season and that is reason enough, right?

And the new officers this season are:

President: Tammy Blunt. Vice President: Debbie Coan, Treasurer: Leta Miller, Secretary: Cindy Renard

From the President:

Ladies, Alas, it was not meant to be. Due to the inclement weather forecast our hosts for the Kickoff tournament acted diplomatically and sent an email to the entrants letting them know what the weather forecast was going to be and whether they would still like to play.

Not all responded but 11 of 21 opted out, with one still willing to brave the wet and cold. Therefore, it was decided to cancel our Kickoff tournament. Leta will shred your checks for this tournament.

Thank you Cindy Renard, Ann Wagner and Jeanne Vance Shoemaker for your hard work in putting this together!

Tammy

Thank you, thank you, thank you....

As many of you know, we have lost our principle founder and first President of BWGL, Terry Chesnut. She passed away in December at the age of 89, just days shy of her 90th birthday. We know that Terry was an avid golfer. In fact, her family said she had been golfing weekly with family until the week before her death. Through the years, she had held many positions in golfing organizations including KWGA. And, Terry held many positions though her years in BWGL. No doubt, she is golfing in Heaven and working on organizing a golfing league!

I would like to express my heartfelt thanks for your response in contributing to the memorial for Terry. It was very kind of the family to make BWGL a memorial gift site. As of now, the donations total over $300. If anyone would still like to make a memorial gift, please send it to our Treasurer, Leta Miller. Currently, the plan is to use monies towards the newly needed BWGL Championship Winners plaque and honoring Terry.

Thank you, Terry, for your foresight and fortitude along with the other founding members to establish BWGL. We are now in our 39th season and still going strong! We will miss you, Terry!

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Lana has at least one volunteer signed up for all the scheduled tournaments except the weekend at Coffeyville (June 12/13)! Just 2 or 3 members are needed to band together and make this tournament happen!! I say 2 or 3 because it's usually more fun and less work if there is more than one doing it. Lana has put together a very good schedule of tournaments, now we just have to get together and make them happen!!!

From the Handicap Chair.....

Let's all get the season started right with making sure you form the habit of posting your score right after you play so you don't forget. You may think "I'll do it later", and then you forget or don't have a scorecard to recall your hole scores or adjusted score. Do you remember there once was an infomercial on TV that had the promo line "Set it & Forget it"? Well, let's change that to "Post it & Forget it"!

If you haven't set a password in your login to GHIN, you must do so to get access to your account.

Do let me know:

- If you have a change to your address or email.
- If you need corrections to posted entries.
- If you need to reset your password in GHIN.
- If you have any questions.

If you do not pay your GHIN fee through BWGL, you will need to let your club's handicap administrator know if those changes/corrections need to be made.

Peggy

RINGER SCORES

Don't forget!! Everyone is BACK TO posting their own Ringer Scores this year. Thanks to Nonya and Carol for doing that for us during our "pandemic season".

5 GOLF ETIQUETTE RULES (THAT WE ALL KNOW)

- Silence is golden. As a courtesy, do not move or make any noise when a fellow player is up to putt. ...
- Take your time, but not too much. ...
- Losing the game can be frustrating, But losing your cool is significantly worse.
- Watch where you stand. ...
- Respect the green.

WEEKLY AWARDS

The 2021 BWGL season started on April 6 with a thunderstorm in the morning. No members golfed in the morning, but 6 golfed in the evening for the weekly prize for Guess Your Score. We welcomed new members Annie and Mary to BWGL. Let the season begin!!!

Eighteen BWGL ladies golfed the back nine on April 13, 2021. Two golfed in the morning, and 16 in the evening substituting par on the 2 worst holes. We are all appreciative to get to rotate between the front and back nine this year.

Monthly winners will be acknowledged and listed at the end of each month

On the next 3 pages, you will find some golf tips for women golfers Many of you do not need these extra tips but there may be something really helpful for some of us high handicappers!!!

GOLF TIPS FOR WOMEN

From the Keiser University College of Golf

Golf is a great game for improving your health, increasing your focus and mental strength, and enjoying great weather with friends and family. Use these 10 golf tips to improve your game and lower your scores.

BEND AT THE HIPS

- At times, beginning women golfers tend to bend at their knees rather than tilt their body at their hips.
- Bending at the knees ruins proper posture, and saps the swing of power.
- Bending at the hips creates an athletic stance that pushes your rear and shoulder blades back, creating room for the swing and enhancing balance.
- Bending at the knees tends to force the club into more of an up-and-down action rather than a circular motion around the body.
- A similar error is to bend at the waist rather than the hip joints.
- Bending at the waist promotes an overly-rounded and bent over back angle, creating a weak foundation that makes it difficult to build a repeating swing.

CORRECT GRIP

- A good golf swing is built around a correct grip.
- Since it is the only contact you have with the club, if the grip is unsound, the swing will begin incorrectly and proceed to get worse as it develops.
- A correct grip starts with standing with your hands and arms hanging loosely and naturally.
- Without changing the angle or position of your hands, place the golf club in your left hand, making sure the clubface is square to your target line.
- The club will run in a diagonal line across the fingers, and the butt will end up on the bottom portion of your heel pad.
- A common error is to hold the club in the palm of the hand.
- In reality, a golf club lies in the fingers.
- Looking down, you should be able to see the knuckles of your left middle and index fingers.
- If you see four knuckles, your hand is turned too far to the right, and if you only see one knuckle, it is turned too far to the left.
- Take your right hand, and wrap it around the club, placing the pad over your left thumb.
- You'll notice two Vs in between your index finger and thumb on each hand. They should point slightly inside your right shoulder.

SWING THROUGH THE BALL

- While hitting the ball cleanly, crisply and powerfully is your ultimate goal, it should not be how you think about your swing.
- Your swing should remain relaxed and fluid, and focusing too much on hitting the ball itself will create an awkward, hurried effort and a herky-jerky result.
- A telltale sign is if you take the club back slowly and surely, only to jerk it down from the top of your swing and slap at the ball haphazardly.
- Instead, think about the idea of "hitting the ball with your practice swing."
- Admittedly, it takes some practice to make this mental shift.
- However, once you can hit through the ball using the same relaxed approach you use in your practice swing, the ball will take care of itself.
- It will jump off the club with velocity and accuracy.

ROOM FOR POWER

- Accuracy and strategy are equally important when attempting to shoot low scores and improve your handicap.
However, power does play a big role in the game, and let's face it, it's a lot of fun.
- To set up properly to hit the ball far, you need to create room for your body to torque properly, and unwind through the ball with authority.
- To do this with your driver, for example, create a wide stance with the ball positioned slightly forward.
- Place 60 to 65 percent of your weight on your rear foot, with your head and upper torso tilted slightly back.
- With a relaxed stance, hold the driver and allow approximately the space of one open hand between your body and the butt of the club.

INCREASE RESISTANCE

- Power in the golf swing comes from creating tension between your upper and lower body, and unwinding that force gradually and smoothly.
- You can gain yardage by increasing the resistance in your hips.
- The higher the degree of angle between your shoulders and hips, the more stored-up power you create.
- Renowned golf trainer Jim McLean dubbed this angle "The X Factor."
- Think of how a baseball player holds the bat and almost turns her back to the pitcher.
- As the ball comes across the plate, her hips begin to unwind well before the shoulders, and the bat comes around last with significant power, almost like a slingshot.

SWEEP THE BALL

- This tip is somewhat related to our recommendation to swing "through the ball."
- Longer clubs such as the driver, 3-metal, 5-metal and 7-metal are best hit by sweeping the club head along the ground, collecting the ball in the process.
- With mid and long irons, you "hit down," making contact with the ball slightly before the club.
- However, with the driver and longer clubs, place the ball slightly forward in the stance, and think about sweeping the ball.

SHIFT WEIGHT TO FORWARD FOOT

- The golf swing is a balance between creating a solid foundation and allowing a fluid, natural movement that flows from backswing to forward swing naturally and fully.
- A common error is to lock the heels to the ground to the point where your body cannot turn through the ball into a nice follow through — often called "hanging back."
- At the end of your swing, your thighs will finish very close to each other.
- Here is a quick check: there should not be a significant gap between your knees at the end of the swing, and your weight should have shifted to your forward foot, allowing your back foot to rise on the toe.

LET IT FLOW

- One reason golf professionals advocate a relaxed swing is that it allows the club to unwind powerfully through the ball, creating that distinctive sound of club head making contact with the ball.
- Take relaxed practice rings, concentrating on creating a “whoosh” sound at the bottom of the swing.
- Stay relaxed, and let the club snap through with authority as it makes the sound.
- This is one of our simplest golf tips for women, but it will help free up your swing and create more dynamic motion through the ball.

LOOSE AND POWERFUL

- If you’ve ever felt tired and sore at the end of a golf round, you realized how demanding the game really is.
- Each of these golf tips for women will be more effective if you make some simple preparations beforehand.
- The American Council on Exercise suggests you work on two areas of exercise before setting foot on the course.
- First, focus on flexibility by stretching muscles using exercises such as trunk rotation and leg extensions.
- Second, employ strength exercises which focus on shoulders, hips, legs and core.
- This one-two punch of flexibility and strength will provide better results, allow you to play longer and reduce the potential for injury.

HAMMER IT

- A powerful golf swing results from a buildup of tension as the upper body coils over the lower body as well as the release through the wrists and elbows.
- To get a better idea of how the wrist unleashes power, grab a hammer and hold it as if you were about to hit a nail.
Notice that if you try to raise and lower the hammer with your arm only, it is difficult to make any progress.
- On the other hand, if you let your wrist hinge and use the leverage to your advantage, it does not take much effort to pound the nail square into a piece of wood.
- Likewise, the uncoiling of your wrists and elbows releases the power you stored in your backswing, helping you hit the ball farther and more accurately.
